題目內容

1911 Revolution

By October 1911, it was clear that the end of dynastic rule in China was imminent. Sun Yat Sen's men had just successfully infiltrated the most modern military army in China in Wuchang, Hubei. As his revolutionary ideas of "nationalism, democracy, and people's livelihood" spread among the officers and the soldiers, they led their own coup after an investigation following a bomb accident threatened many of them with imprisonment. The weakened Qing government based in the north took several weeks to respond to the coup in the south, allowing the revolutionaries time to not only declare the secession of Hubei, but also for them to influence other provinces to do the same.
